ATTENTION GRABBER

HELPFUL THINGS!!!!

My web site although not completely finished is now up and running. I have attempted to put some valuable information there for you. Please give it a visit.

A reminder that 24 hour notice is required for missed appointments other than illness. However, if appointments are missed on a regular basis due to another constantly conflicting commitment I will have to charge for the missed appointment. Frequently, I have students who could benefit from an extra session; advance notification allows for this to occur.

Invoices are payable upon receipt and sent by e-mail the last of the month. The good news is there will be no fee increase this year but the bad news is I now have to charge GST. Your child's tuition fees are tax deductible if your child has a diagnosed learning disability.

A monthly newsletter will be posted on my

WEB SITE each month in an attempt to offer helpful home suggestions and educational information. I firmly believe that knowledge is a powerful thing.

I welcome any phone questions or concerns you may have. However, in unscheduled calls, please respect my time and be prepared to set an appointment to discuss large issues in depth.

The Learning Disabilities Organization has a very active local chapter in Mississauga which can be reached at 905-272-4100 they offer several courses as well as parent support and advocacy

LDA Resource Exhibition and Conference

BALANCING KNOWLEDGE with PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

is being held at the Mississauga Living Arts Centre

from 9:00 until 4:00 on November 6th, 2008

This year's speakers will be Dr. K. Handleman a psychiatrist who assesses and treats ADHD in children and Ron Morrish, an educational consultant and behaviour specialist.

This conference is an outstanding opportunity to meet and discuss your specific situation and child's needs with local support providers.
